Honokong, September Sth, 1875. THE question of a supply of Asiatic labour to develop the resources of the territory about the Gulf of Carpenteria is now exciting some attention and discussion in South Australia. The matter was recently strict enquiry to be made into the whole busidebated in the South Australian House of laces, the object of which is apparent. Assembly. The opinion seems unanimously to be that such labour is needed at once, as it is in contemplation by the Government of South Australia to establish plantations in the Northern Territory, the only question being as to the best and most desirable source from which to procure it. A strong projudice is evidently felt against the Chineso in Australia. Their low tone of morality: the fact that they are unaccompanied by women, and their roving, speculative disnosition, are all put in the scales against them. of their goldfields, because the latter only visit their shores to carry off. some of their mineral wealth. They admit that they are alterations were submitted to meet the recoma hardworking and industrious people, but | mendations made at last meeting. still regard them, from their habits and mode of life, as most undesirable associates for Europeans. In addition to this they are not British subjects; and without allowing a representative of the Chinese Government to be stationed at Port Darwin it would, it is thought, be most unwise and impolitic to place them under the restrictions of the indenture system. Now it cannot be denied that there is a good deal of force in the argumedts of the Australians; but there is something to be said on the other side. In dian coolies have, it seems, been tried, with great success, in Mauritius, and as they are usually British subjects, and must by law be accompanied from India by a certain percentage of women, they are regarded by the the moment, Australians as having better qualifications for The CHIEF JUSTICE said power to reduce one's feet. The advantages of emigration are therefore undoubtedly twofold, and though he takes the step in his own interest, every emigrant who bids farewell to his native shores really leaves his country for his country's good. The has rightly been termed a mother of nations. Thousands have left her shores annually, and is more room in the great lands of America. thinly peopled countries. The Chinese Gothe country by helping forward emigration. Emigration is seldom really voluntary: necessity, not choice, is almost the invariable cause for it. How great the necessity for it there is in China is demonstrated by the extensive manuer in which it has for some years been going forward to the Straits Settlements. The development of her mineral resources and the formation of railroads would of course give employment to vast numbers who now have little to do and get the barest pittance for their work. But allowing for these two important improvements in China, which are not likely, it is to be feared, to be carried out for many years, there must still be a large number to whom emigration to a foreign country will always prove a desirable thing. The action of the South Australians in giving Indian coolies the preference, chiefly on the ground of their being accompanied by their wives, may perhaps help to open Chinese eyes, and make a roll of notes for $560, or thereaboute, to pay them understand that they are not welcome

Some practices, which we presume most the merch inte, in Calcutta would stiguistice as discredituble, eave the Englishman, have lately been brought to light in connection with the trado to Mauritius - Some telegrams from Colombo were shown about in Calcutta, stating that several steamers had been taken up there for the purpose of sending rice to Mauritian, such rice being held by the banks as security for advances to a firm which had failed. All shipstopped, and from 1-5 a bag the rate of freight became nominal. It subsequently transpired that the intimation in the telegrams was entirely fictitions. We learn that Lieut, Huntley of the 10th Regiment, has tendered his resignation of his appointment as Assistant Superintendent of olice, in Province Wellceley, and intends rejoining his regiment. It is not known who will be appointed in Lient Huntley's stead. Touching appointments, which have been so rofusely dealt in lately, with no very satisfactory result to any one concerned, we are enabled to state that Major Gray has been appointed by the Secretary of State, to be Superintendent of the Singapore Guol, and that the Reverend arthur Ferren has been appointed Chaplaia of Penang. These appointments will undergo no evision, coming as they do from the fountain head of patronage. Two men have been going about with samples of untaxed brandy, which they mysteriously offered up a very low price to such persons as they thought likely to buy. If the sample and price was accepted-which it always was, say the policethey brought a fifty litre cook, with all scorecy The cabaretier, suspicious, of course, with such sellers, had full liberty to tap it where he pleased, and he did so. Each hole of the gimlet-brought forth cognac equal to sample, the men received their price, and the cabaretier, in high delight, carried off the cask for bottling. All went well for the first few litres; then the run of brandy stopped. On shaking the COME HOUSES on PEDDAR'S HILL cask a sound was heard of gurgling liquid, but nothing would come through the bunghole. After much trial and tribulation the secret was discovered. In the fifty-litre cask, a smaller one, holding forty-eight litres, was suspended, full of water. Only as much brandy had been provided as would fill the space between the barrels. JOSH BILLINGS ON MARRIAGE: It is a fair transaction on the face of but there are too many put-up jobs in it There is a great deal of moral grit in marriage. It is the mortar that unites the whole of the social fabric. Some marry for money and don't get it. Some for pedigree. They feel good for six months, and then weaken. long to please their relations, and then find they don't care a cent for them. Some marry for love, without a cent or a friend. Therei a risk in this; but it is so honest that heaven smiles on such marriages. Some marry second time to get even. But they find it is a gambling game—the more you put down the less they take up. Some marry they can't tell why, and live they can't tell how. Marriage is a good joke. It has its chances which gives it its savour. All hope to win the prize. Some dou't. I am authorised to state that if you win, you get a big pile, and if you lose, you are not the only man looled.

THE JAPANESE DEAD. A Japanese cemetery we visited was so full of tembstones, we thought it most probably belonged to the seet who are economical of space and burn their relatives. On each tembstone there were two small holes and one large one—the former to hold bambon filled with water, in which were placed bouquets of flowers and evergreens, while the larger one is intended to contain rice for the occupant of the grave on fête days. Excent that they have graveyards, and do not bury their dead promisenously all over the country, the Japanese seem to treat their deceased relations in much the same manner as the Chinese, for though one sect " oremate" and the other do not, all unite in the respect paid to their uncestors.
